Spy Charges Post 12-20-48

MOSCOW — The Soviet government newspaper Izvestia has printed charges that the owner of one London newspaper and the editor of another have affiliations with British intelligence, according to sources with access to an Izvestia weekend supplement not yet on sale.

The supplement, Nedelya, says Daily Telegraph owner Lord Hartwell has a British intelligence number of BIN-943 and Observer editor David Astor has intelligence connections, the sources reported.